LINC FACILITY SERVICES LAUNCHES WEB RESOURCE CENTER

Informational Web site now available from global leader in facility management

Washington, DC — July 19, 2007 — Linc Facility Services[®], a leader in facility management and operational support services, announced today it has launched a new Web site that enables online searchers easy access to the growing capabilities and service offerings of Linc Facility Services and its operating companies.

The new Linc Facility Services site uniquely features the Facility Management Resource Center[™], a free internet library of information and tools that provide prospective clients with industry articles and resources on how to reduce facility operating costs and increase productivity. The Facility Management Resource Center also features a “Getting Started” checklist designed to assist facility owners and managers and healthcare organization, aviation industry, and public venue managers prepare and organize for the outsourcing process.

“Linc Facility Services has taken its more than 25 years of experience as a leader in facility management and expertise in outsourcing and has created a much needed, comprehensive online resource for prospects and clients,” said Phil Rogers, president of Linc Facility Services. “The outsourcing process can be overwhelming for those who have never done it. We want to lend them our knowledge and give them the tools to make the evaluation process faster and easier.”
